

“Short Supply”

Written by David Ashley Trent

I had a friend who was a talented guy
Music in his blood; stars in his eye
But he just became a father in 2009
So he had to make a choice what to do with his time
I guess he made up his mind; he sold his guitar
He told his little baby girl you're the one who's the star
And time with you means more in the end
Because it's all about today and the time that you spend
Some people spend it chasing rainbows
Some people spend it getting high
Some people spend it doing nothing
All I know, All I know is that time is in short supply
Time is in short supply
I think about the events in my past
From the good times to the bad times they never seem to last
Too long, stay strong, stay focused, move on
If you have to look back to see where you came from that's ok
Just remember life's a marathon
It's not a forty yard dash but it does fly by fast, y'all
They say life is like a vapor in the wind
So it's all about today and the time that you spend
Some people spend it chasing rainbows
Some people spend it getting high
Some people spend it doing nothing
All I know, All I know is that time is in short supply
Time is in short supply
You wanna talk about makin' a change
You want your friends to remember your name
Well, you're gonna have to let go of some things
Yeah, you're gonna have to let go of the reigns
I don't care what they say time is not on your side
We're getting shorter of breath as the days go by and
No one knows when this life will end
So it's all about today and the time that you spend
Some people spend it chasing rainbows
Some people spend it getting high
Some people spend it doing nothing
All I know, All I know is that time is in short supply
Time is in short supply
Time is in short supply
Time is in short supply