

“The Friend Song”

Written by David Ashley Trent

I heard you say
There is no way
You could walk through this life all alone
You tried to be strong
You tried to hold on
But you can't win the war on your own
There's lots of people in the same boat as you
They know exactly what you're going through
The trick is to find people you like
And take 'em down the road with you
Because it's good to have a friend or two
Yes it's good to have a friend or two
When the walls are falling down on you
Well it's good to have a friend yes it's good to have a friend
And I know you've heard
Those proverbial words
That two heads are better than one
So reach out your hand to your fellow man
And we can walk side by side in the sun
There's lots of people in the same boat as you
You know exactly what they're going through
The trick is to find
People you like
And take 'em down the road with you
Oh, it's good to have a friend or two
Yes it's good to have a friend or two
When the walls are falling down on you
Well it's good to have a friend yes it's good to have a friend
Sometimes you got it; sometimes you don't Sometimes you'll be alright now, and sometimes you won't
What you need is a plan of attack: a couple of friends who always got your back
What you need is a plan of attack: a couple of friends who always got your back now
Because it's good to have a friend or two
Yes it's good to have a friend or two
When the walls are falling down on you
Well it's good to have a friend yes it's good to have a friend
Or two, or two, or two Well it's good to have a friend or two
